

Environmental Protection

If the Earth could talk, it would be very likely be complaining about what we have done to it. Earth is suffering the effects of pollution, global warming, poaching, etc. As a result, the air and water are contaminated. Additionally, many animal species are dead and dying. Frogs, for example, lose their homes and habitats as land is developed for housing and other purposes. If we don't do something about the way we treat our planet, we will eventually be the ones paying the price.

Therefore, we should try to recycle, protect endangered species, and use our resources wisely, to keep our Earth healthy.