

Appreciate What I Have

Earth, the planet we live on. Without Earth our existence wouldn't even be known. So I am glad Earth is our "home"! There are many kinds of people and animals all over the world and some don't get along and I hope that one day we would all get along to avoid controversies and everyone will be friends. Right now, the Earth has been acting up for instance, the weather and global warming, natural disasters, and pollutions.

I know it's hard and some might be impossible but we can help the pollution and global warming by taking care of Earth through limiting our use of cars, littering, and using electricity/energy, etc. I can help these tasks even if it is done slowly, step by step.

I like and respect all the friends I have because they are like my second family and of course my family.

The Earth is pretty, but you and I, all of us can make some kind of good difference and I appreciate what I have now.
