

Sustainable liberty is the cornerstone of a global society where every individual has the right to do whatever they wish, so long as their actions do not directly harm another human being or harm the ecological balance necessary for future generations to enjoy the same liberty of action.