

Human Rights

Throughout this whole school year sophomores at Mission have learned a lot about different genocides and things happening around the world. Our school even held the privilege of speaking and hearing Carl Williams and his experience in the genocide. Even though it seems like we live in a perfect world with nothing to stop our happiness, there are remote places around the world where human rights are being violated.

So what are human rights? Human rights are rights that every single person is entitled to when they are born. In some countries, the police beat the children trying to keep the population levels lower. Although it seems they are doing a good thing, trying to keep population at a minimum, they are violating the children's human right.

Currently there are many different groups fighting for human rights such as Amnesty International. WE need to help people that have their human rights violated.
