Environmental Protection

As we all know, the world's environment is pretty bad right now. With all the polluting we are all doing everyday, Earth's environment will just get even worse. For example, everyday people are driving their pimping cars. By driving the pimping cars, we are putting smoke from the car to the air, further making the environment works. Also, right now, there is an oil spill in the bay. Everyday, about one billion gallons of oil is rushing into the ocean, making sea creatures die, and making the ocean filled with oil.

We can all help the world's environment and make it better, and also protect it by doing little thing from time to time. People can change their light bulbs to fluorescent light bulbs. People can either drive less or try buying an environment friendly car like an electric car or a hybrid. By doing some of these things, we can help the world little by little and make Earth a better place to live in.
