

Towards a Lasting Peace: Leading and Living It

As a human being, it is our innocent power and right to treat to other human beings, the animals, plants, and other forms of life with Love and Peace. Our current world view about equality for all beings is still in its infancy and we can see evidence of this when we pay attention to the major challenges of the world. If we and when humanity realizes through trial and error that hate, fear, and ignorance are not the best solution to a “lasting Peace” for all, then there will be no other option other than to give and make room for harmony, unity and a lasting peace. We are that love and peace in our personal relationships and allow that light to expand out to effect the collective world view in a constructive way.
