

Reflection on Human Right

Pilar Villanueva Tubog

Faculty

School of Education, Arts and Sciences

Universidad de Zamboanga

Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human rights are "rights and freedoms to which all humans are entitled", Proponents of the concept usually assert that everyone is endowed with certain entitlements merely by reason of being human. Human rights are thus conceived in the Universalist and egalitarian fashion. Such entitlements can exist as shared norms of actual human moralities, as justified moral norms or natural rights supported by strong reasons, or as legal rights either at a notional level or within international law. However, there is no consensus to the precise nature of what in particular should or should not be regarded as a human right in any of the preceding senses, and the abstract concept of human rights has been a subject of intense philosophical debate and criticism.

All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. We are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.

In fact, everyone has the right to life". According many Human Rights activists, the death penalty violates, these rights. Right to life is a phrase that describes the belief that a human being has an essential right to live, particularly that a human being has the right not to be killed by another human being. Everyone has the right to live, to love to be loved, to be gay or straight. It is our choice. Fight to live, fight to be loved, fight for our rights. What is important we are not violating any laws & we are following the commandments of God.