

“BLUE GARDENIA RIGHTS”

Kristina Nepelyn O. Mangila

School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

This right is about the rights of every cadaver that is being embalmed. Every family or significant others are really having a hard time accepting and letting go that death had occurred. But it is a natural process of every human life, death can never be stopped or even be predicted it comes along naturally.

Although the death doesn't speak and complain about their situations inside the morgue, it doesn't mean that they are well treated. It is said that once you know the embalmers they will take good care of the cadaver, but if you don't know anyone or won't let anyone be with the cadaver they mistreated it during embalming.

Death are still human being and needs to be respected and treated well, it is not against in human life to treat them with respect and honor.