

Common Issues on Human Rights

Sahara J. Saliling

School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human rights? Are we given the chance to have this? Globally, as far as I know only few of us given the privilege to be recognized as equally treated by somebody, most commonly in terms of dominant religion that we have, socioeconomic status, justice and gender. As mentioned, all of these fall into disrespect to each and everyone. Simply, we cannot blame others why they perceive this kind of act, thus think only there had been reasons behind this situation. Why in terms of dominant religion we have? As I noticed, some people are just following the beliefs of their family, grown within the shelter of their family being educated by their words encompasses with beliefs, opinions and issues without knowing, people who have indifferent religion from them treated and store in their minds the wrongful act of interaction from them, although sometimes, few of them live it as a secret and not to tell to somebody whom they prefer different from them. Gladly, other groups of people are not just like the people whose act indifferently rather good interpersonal relationship is observed. Sometimes, when other places lived by most of the same religion and this is the place where wars frequently happen, as a result others of the same religion which I formerly mentioned lived from the cities or anywhere treated by the indifferent religion as also threatening and have a negative insight even these people are much different from them, just like between Muslims and Christians. There had been many cases in terms of the differences regarding religions and treated unequally by others and why unity originates in them and to one another even in us as member of the society, just for instance, here in Zamboanga, others are not given the chance to be like the others; example is when applying for a job.

Why socioeconomic status? Let just think about the term “child labor”, Isn't it familiar to us? Indeed, yes because as a victim of not having a good life, thereby in addition to this, they experience being exploited by their employer and not given the opportunity to have their education.

Do we fight for justice? Definitely, all of us do not want to ignore this but the question is, do some given the chance to achieve this? Meanwhile, not all thus other groups of people whose been affected also by their loss of their loved one especially when killed or murdered innocently or anything do they think they have the right to fight for as sometimes mandated by the law, nationally or local.

Lastly, in terms of gender, women are the most controversial issue correlated with disrespect and unequally treated as human being. One of the happenings between women is being by a man, even by a father or sometimes by a grandfather and sometimes tend to be killed after had been raped. In addition freedom in every person has been disturbed to live as a happy life today and tomorrow or as the years past.