The abuse of military in the government is the using of power. There are lots of brutality act in the military. For example, they torture a suspect in order to give information even though they are not sure if it is the right person they have arrested. Lots of military acts are not within the rules and regulations of the government. Many military forget their obligation to civilians that is to give protection.

Like what happen in Maguindanao, Ampatuan used his power to massacre people who wants to fight against him in the election. Probably because he thinks that if he will lose in the election, he will lose everything.

Military also tend to abuse the use of their power by arresting innocent people to admit crime that they did not commit. Military forget that we have rules and laws to follow and that an accused person must pay the crime he committed against the law. Most military no longer do their duty well and comply what they have pledge that is to protect the people and his country.

This is a big problem in the Philippines. Military and police alike are no longer conscious of their deeds. Good or bad deed doesn't seem to matter a lot to them especially if they are carrying firearms. They tend to over react even in a simple situation. Most police assigned in rural areas are the ones abusive. They seem to abuse people by using their power and do not care much about the people that they must protect. They forget that these people work hard for their survival. Some police also makes money from driver of motor vehicles.

Abuse of power in military doesn't seem to stop but gets worse and worsen each day.
