

EXTRAJUDICIAL KILLINGS

Bucoy, Julius Cerilo
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

There are so many victims of these extrajudicial killings in our country. It has greatly affected the people living in our country, especially people from places where this killing is frequent. It has been already accustomed in our society that this type of crime became habitual to those who are doing it. And there are times even the Philippine National Police are the ones involve.

The people involved here do not have conscience. They are taking lives away. Because of this it has affected the trust of the people to the government officials and to our special forces. We should stop these extrajudicial killings. We should follow the rules and regulations, and the law of our country to achieve peace and order.

Like in Maguindanao Massacre, it was very sad that this had happened in our country. The family involved in this massacre comes from a very influential clan. That's why there are only very few who wants to be witnesses for this case. We need to stop and fight against this. And make the responsible people suffer from the consequences they have done.