Human rights are the rights of every person: to enjoy life, to be loved, to express oneself to others. It is very important on our life, because this gives us freedom on everything we do. But there are people who are trying to abuse other people's rights. Example is child labor. The child's rights are being taken away from this wrong doing. The child has the right to education. And in such a young age, they should enjoy their childhood. As we can see, human rights are very important. Especially in our country, where there are so many abusers.

It is very disturbing to know that there are still these abuses happening in our country. We are a democratic country. But how can we experience equality as what should be and as stated in the law if there are violence and abuses in our community?
