

HUMAN RIGHTS “Justice delayed is justice denied”

Christian Ed M. Montebon

School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

According to ethics “Rights is natural or positive accordingly as it is founded upon the natural law or positive law. Again, as positive law is both divine right and human right. Reckoning during the time when the Philippine was under the seize of Spanish colony, where one have read in books, pamphlets, gazettes and other written memoirs and even seen in the television. The portrayal of what justice was then as distinguish from today where there were strife’s, slavery and killing of unknown reason, less privilege and unequal treatment of women, poor and rich one’s are apparently reflected. Yet because of the indignant treatment, our ancestor fought for their rights, colonized by different heritage, different culture and different system still invariable injustice prevails. Until the present era major transformation have been gone thru, no differences since then, human rights are gradually dwindle, and sensitivity have been diminished. People who are those in poverty are the ones who are victims of these injustices of human rights, not only through legal sense but also in their daily livings. However, for those who still hold hopes, who still have faith through suffering let us not make first to each individual but instead attain our aim, goal and to have sense of purpose to give what is due to others where human rights must placed in an equal position.