Every person has their human rights; even unborn babies already have the right to be born. These rights discharge the same responsibilities in the community, protect us from danger, and to live without fear.

Unfortunately, there are some who abuses people. Even government officials use their power to do what they want, for their self interest. Also police officers, wherein they should be the one protecting the people against human rights violators, protect people from danger, but there are some who abuses their power and violates human rights. Like, they will torture inmates just for their self pleasure. Eventhough they are prisoners, they still have their rights.
