

Human Rights
Agabon Jr., Williado B.
Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga

All human being are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood. We should treat them in equal whether we are born in different races, culture, status, political ad religions for the better of everyone. And also we need to be equal in any justices for all he people and not for the sake of any violence that may discourage or that may unequal to all the people. Everyone has a role in our nation and we should respect that to have a better nation and also the upcoming young once we also be a good follower and they bring this from generation to generation. Equality is a sense of being free, happy and comfortable for all the people in their living. Before we do something that interrupt the life of people we should think first and decide if we did not destruct someone that does not treat unequal to anyone.