

HUMAN RIGHTS

Alfaisal J. Hassan
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human Rights

Human rights are universal, indivisible and interdependent. Human rights are what make us human. When we speak of the right to life or development or to dissent or diversity. We are speaking of tolerance, tolerance will ensure all freedom. Without it, we can be certain of none. The raging ethnic cleansing on Kosovo is an example of intolerance. And human rights are rights of every person to have what he wants to have such as house, money, even life. And the right to protect these rights against violators.