“How to save the environment”

Environment is a great part of our lives. In order to save our environment it must start within ourselves. Change should start with us. Taking care well of ourselves means we could take good care of the things around us. Like for example proper hygiene and discipline ourselves is a very good trait often words if we made this we can surely make it within our environment.

Reuse and recycle are great moves. If we reuse the things that are still usable then we can help ourselves from keep on throwing plastic worse etc. recycle could be a great help too, to avoid burning of plastic garbage and others that could destroy our environment. Discipline and responsibility are great mothers too for if we discipline ourselves from creating things that can damage our environment then we could save it. Responsibility must be our trait in taking very seriously. Awareness should be there also for us to be aware of our doing that could harm our environment.

Practicing these thing in our daily living is a great step to our environment. For our environment is not we inherent from our ancestors but this is what we passed on to our children.
