

HUMAN RIGHTS

Hafsa S. Dasimin
School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human right is the most important law in one country. Every individual has its own rights. Here in the Philippines, we have a democracy to do whatever we want to do and whatever we want to be. Even though you are rich nor poor, girl nor boy or whoever you are, as long as you are not violating the law. Every right s comes a greater responsibility. Example if you want to have a big family with many children, then, you can. But be sure that you can take care all of them and you can sustain their needs specially when it comes in fmancial aspects. And in every decision you will make be aware of its consequences and make sure that you can handle all the responsibilities and problems you may encounter.

People who are horrible don't know how to respect the rights of other, they will whatever they want to do without considering that they already violated their rights of other. Example of this is battered wife, a woman that was raped and abused. Every human must be respected their rights and must nit treated as an animal. Respecting one another creates a better and peaceful world.