

HUMAN RIGHTS

Jemar A. Kasim
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human rights are rights of every individual given to him as being a human. They are particularly given to all people freely. They are set to have a goal which is to have a crime-free society.

Human rights are the rights of people that can defend his self from those abusers. Human rights are laws that made by the government for the people. For example, the families of the victims from the Maguindanao massacre. They want justice from what happened to their loved ones. They were brutally killed. They are fighting for their rights.