

HUMAN RIGHTS

Michael Ben-Abo
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human rights are the rights of a person; these are also law given by the government. The government makes law to protect the people and these are rights that are more elaborated. Example is when you buy a product and you found out that it is damaged, you have the right to change it, and they also have the right to choose. Another example is that if you are violating or abusing other people, they have the right to file case against you and you can be imprisoned if the he is found guilty.