

HUMAN RIGHTS

Raffy F. Ramos
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

All of us have human rights. When we were born we immediately acquire our rights as a human being. What are these human rights? Human rights are rights and freedom given to every person. These are stated in our constitution, as the Human Rights Bill. This Bill all our rights are there, and elaborated further by other laws that were done through time.

The right to life; the right to a just and fair trial; the right to vote; the right to assembly and the right to privacy; these are some rights that are stated in the Bill of Rights. There are law making bodies in a country that will ensure the rights of its citizens.