

HUMAN RIGHTS

Romely C. Celeste
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Human rights: these are acts of freedom of a person, who is a resident or living in a democratic society, wherein there is an absence of crime. Some element of these rights are, right to remain silent, right to know the nature of accusation, and the right to have own council.

It is our right to have a crime-free community. But in the society we're living, crimes are everywhere. It is the role of the government to keep the people safe and protected against criminals.