Human rights are rights and freedoms of every individual in the world as being human. Every person living has his freewill. Freedom what he wants to do in his life.

Rights of a person: to express oneself, to know what is happening in the surrounding, to education, to have a good health, and to vote. These are just some examples of human rights that we are practicing in our life. We have these rights for our own protection. That is how important human rights are.
