Human rights speak about your rights and freedom in your life. All people in the world have their rights. Freedom to whatever they want to do in their life.

What I observed here in our country, if you don't have money you can be easily abused. It's as if you can't fight for your right. Rich people can buy and take away the rights of weak people. There was a case wherein a rich person was accused of a crime, murder. The family of the victim is not well-off. The suspect was charged not guilty because what he did was he paid the witness a certain amount of money just not to speak. In this case there were so many human rights abuses.

It's really hard for the deprived people to fight for their rights. They are the ones being abused all the time. What I want is a fair justice. All of us born with the same rights and freedoms. But why is it there are imbalances in our society?
