

Human Rights
Tomboc, Jumer Paul E.
Universidad de Zamboanga

When we talk about human rights, obviously it is about the rights of the people who are being abused.

It is just like when the Philippines fight for their rights against the Spaniards in late pass years. Andres Bonifacio created a group to fight the Spaniards for the rights of each and every Filipinos in our country. Now our country experiences the independence for the Americans and Spaniards who wants to reign our country.

There are so many examples about human rights like being me a human, a human who have the right to choose a good leader to lead our country. I have the right to go to school and study. I have the right to give and share my ideas.

Human rights is a very brilliant law made by our government. Because if there's no rights there will be no respect will happen in our country. I think every one will kill each other if there are no human rights. If also there are no human rights our country will be full of criminal and crimes.

Now all of us must respect each other because each and every one of us has the rights even you're a child, teenager or adult you have the rights to do things that is not good and we know that it would help our country and our country men all over the world.