

HUMAN RIGHTS

Von Mark G. Agapay
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboang
Zamboanga City, Philippines

For me the human rights are the law of our country, which all people should follow. All of us have our rights. It's really important in our society. It is a guiding rule for us all. Without it, people will commit crimes everywhere. There would be no freedom, injustice is being ruled. That's how important are the human rights.

The examples are: the right to live or be born, the right to equality, the right to shelter, food and good health, the right to a violence-free society and the right to a fair justice.