The parents should be supportive to their children and not to abandon them
Parents must work to support their children in everyday life and to convince the child to go to school and support the child to succeed in school.

If I am a parent, I will support my son as to what he wants and what is right for him. You have to love the child because the child is the hope of the fatherland. You have to control the child from using drug and drinking alcohol. The child must also respect the parents because the parents sacrifice for their children and parents really love their children.
