Police brutality is the act of police officer that is unlawful, wherein he is forcing the accused of the suspect to admit or confess the crime by torturing physically. Police officers who are caught in doing such thing must file a case against him, discharge from his duty, and sent to prison if found guilty. This kind of act must be stopped. It's against their duties, against the law. The chief of police must check their men if they are performing their duties and responsibilities properly and legally.
