

POLICE BRUTALITY

Hamghasi, Sajili U.
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Police brutality is an act of physical violence done by the police, intentionally hurting other civilians or even colleagues. Some examples are sex abuse, illegal detention, and physical torture. There have been so many reports of cases against police in our country. Cases of rape, people they arrest without Warrant of Arrest, detaining a person without due process: these are some of the cases filed against police officers who abuse their authority.