For me, my impression about Military and Police abuses is that they are showing to the people that they are powerful and in position, that they have the control over the civilians. They think they can do whatever they want to do. They are not respecting civilians. If they will see that there are civilians will go against their way, they will hurt those civilians. Some of the Military and Police men are like that, it's like that is their attitude. It's like they will pretend that they are there in our place to keep peace and order, but they are there to feel like they are the rulers of the place. That's why people are losing trust on them.
