Most of us Filipinos have good and bad experiences with the police and military.

There are good things that I want to point out about the police and military as I have experienced. The duties and responsibilities of our beloved law enforcers are to protect and serve our motherland, the Philippines. If there are problems that will arise they will immediately solve the problems the best they can and in the best of their abilities. Our beloved law enforcers must be good examples in our society because they are the one protecting us from the danger in our society. Being law enforcers have a big task in our country.

But there are negative things that are happening in our society with regards with our law enforcers. There are some that they abuse the rights of the people they should be protecting. They think that they are powerful, they are in authority. They can manipulate and disrespect the people.
