POLICE AND MILITARY ABUSES

Waras, Almer A.
BS Criminology
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Police and military abuse their power and use their authority for their own gain, like they are collecting money from people in illegal ways. But not all police and military do these things. Some of the police and military are doing abuses because the government doesn't pay any attention to them. They are neglecting their needs. But there are a lot of police and military still values their job. They are still doing their duties and responsibilities, they are protecting the people and our community, and to achieve the goals of the police and military. We also have to work with them to show that we are also working for our country. For those who are abusing their power and authorities as police and military, you have to change your ways and attitude.