Peace for me symbolizes unity and a part of a whole. But first it should start within us in order to have peace in ourselves, home, and even in our entire nation, to attain the common ground of peace in every races of humanity.

Peace can bring no war, peace of mind, and unity to us, rather than to experience atrocious events like what we have experiencing now in our nation. Giving a peaceful treatment between Christians and Muslims is a way to a happy life. Definitely it can cause freedom, freedom that lifts us to a lifelong. Lifelong that we are happy and loving each other. To make different countries unite let us implement "PEACE" that can bring us to great world with no discrimination and full of love.

Facing the fact the only thing that leads the major conflict in the world is the less communication and understanding. Maybe it's also about the human rights because it's also related with peace because having rights is a law, a law that you can use for the right things against the wrong one. For me human right is a supreme which means higher, inherent which means inborn and inalienable which means nontransferable rights to life, to dignity and to self-development. It is the essence of this rights that make man human. Human rights are laws higher than revised penal code-standard, standards are acceptable norms or behavior. Every human have rights to live in this world with peace because we are the God's creature. Maybe misjudgment has been done and make to other people. Talking about our country like politics, politics can cause crime like what happened to Maguindanao massacre that is so embarrass to other country that there is some Filipinos willing to kill just for the name of politics. This is not just first time happened but there is lot of crimes like this. By making laws it can be stop, a law that can change human behavior because crimes won't stop if there is no law that can make criminals suffer in order to discipline them. One thing why is it government is negotiating illegal businesses? That can cause also crime, where is the human rights after all? Because of the money, money can buy everything even law or human rights. It can also buy the justice which can affect the human rights just because of money. I believe that money is a powerful thing. Perhaps, our governments who implement this kind of protocol; they already forget their duties in our country, they are used by somebody who is manipulating them turn to crimes. Maybe some people didn't fight for their rights because they don't have money. But our government minded less in this kind of issue.

In our constitution we have so many laws. Laws that made by discipline that limit the acts of man in every wrong choice of action he did to pursue his plans and motives. Humanitarianism is indeed a respect to other people, to what he is and what he becomes is merely giving him the sense of worth and inherent dignity. Laws are the way to a transformation citizenry in building a better nation. Education is the key to unlock poverty which is the root cause crimes like over population barely people choose to be criminals because of poverty that can affect the living of other people. Talking about the poverty it's related to human rights because of poverty some people might do unexpected values they will become a criminals and most of the girls they will turn to prostitute and maybe turn to drugs. That's why we should control the population in a family to avoid these things. Aiming for rights must be determine right or wrong because there some cases are failed to defend their rights because it's also about money again after all. Misunderstanding is one of the reasons why there are some conflicts that difficult to resolve. A lot of innocence people are being accused and sent to prison without liability. Human rights are already sold out in terms of money because money can make the wrong to right.

Hoping that the human rights will ascend again as it is, the laws that can be apply to us or within us and a power to fight for our rights. As a Filipino citizen I can say that human rights should be implement with protocol of law that having the statement that "no one is above the law" to insure that even money or even government can't cover the protocol of law, no one can break the law. Probably, law can acquire the human rights as a basic or law of human behavior. And human might have enough rights to fight even though he/she is poor. If there is human right then there is peace. Making some assumption that human should attain the peace of mind and be respectful for you to have inherent dignity and even to other people.

Agree that only law can accuse the person and can put a case that he/she belong. But prisoners are also having human rights even though they are prison but still they have their human rights as a human of course. To spur different races in our nation like Christian and Muslims to have peace we must respect our individual rights to have unity or our rights to have peaceful nation and to remove the discrimination and to avoid war.

Peace and human rights is way to unity, great world, and peaceful surroundings. And also can bring us hope that symbolize future and full of ambitions, ambitions that make our mother earth will have peace and love.
