Peace is often emanated from war of cultures. Problem related to peace may never be resolved if culture dominance is not properly addressed. Simple conflicts often spur and result to hatred and curses. A double standard government often misleads people, leading them towards social and environmental predicaments. I guess, I can say that in order for peace to prevail, our core values must be imbedded with mutual respect, empathy, appreciativeness, equity and justice based on many references I reviewed.

Peace and human right is quite tedious to define because there are thousands of meanings and explanations but I got one simple wish that can clearly define peace later when I see one. I wish for a decent future of human race, regardless of race and stature. This wish keeps me motivated to promulgate “peace” among my people and with the environment where I am thriving.
