

PEACE AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Jan Zaldy S. Epos
Computer Engineering Department
Universidad de Zamboanga-Ipil
Zamboanga Sibugay Province, Philippines

Peace must begin on each one of us, therefore, if there is, peace in ourselves, there is peace in our family, if there is peace in our family, there is peace in our community, if there is peace in our community, there is peace in our nation and if there is peace in our nation, there is peace in the whole world. My own perception of peace is that having no arguments to other people, living with a simple life with peace and harmony, having no enemy and hard feelings to other people, open for others with open minds and thoughts.

Being friendly is a sign of peace, because of being open for other people and sharing some ideas and characters, especially with open hearts and mind for other. In such a way, you show your care for others and love is all around us. In that way as what you give for others, they will bring it back to you without having some arguments and lasting misunderstanding because in having such misunderstandings and arguments this will make the problem bigger and bigger. Or worse, it could be the source of wars and miscommunication where hard feeling may occur and probably this will result to killings that would waste many lives.

Every person plays an important role in their life as well as in our community. Each one of us must have a peace of mind so that it will results a world peace or peace on earth. Each one of us must know the importance of peace for it takes a lot of purposes in life. Peace plays an important role in our community as well as the whole world, peace is what an every human being needs and such as freedom and has a right to live. Every human being has a right of what their endeavors, interests and chosen fields in life as what they think that what is right for them and also for others. In our history there is no human rights because many people have been abused, molested and treats like animals, especially the poor people, only the rich and land owners have the power to rule the poor people. Whatever they like, they use money and wealth to get the things they want in life.

Oftentimes, only rich people have justice and rights. Unlike the rich, the poor ones must work hard to eat meal three times a day. They serve and become slaves of rich and powerful people just to survive. Some people choose to be a rebel in this nation to fight for their rights because their voice and their commitments are not being heard by our government. Some of our rebels would kill civilians in order to get the government's attention. Some shouts for their rights, just like activists. When they see the wrong governance of our leaders, they rally on the streets. Now, if the government ignores their voice, trouble springs which lead to war and crimes.

Human right is not the hindrance to maintain peace and order, we must fight for our right in order for us to live in liberty, we will not only to keep in silence because no one will hear our feelings inside of ourselves. Through our heroes, we learn to fight for justice. Every human has a right to live, to pursue our dreams, we think for good first and ask, "Am I doing right? Due to our defensiveness, we sometimes hurt someone although we don't mean it. We must keep the peace in our minds and heart and control our temper. People have different principles in life and that principle is what the people think that is considered right for them, as long as that principle is worth fighting for.

Human rights has limitations, for example a person depends on his/her rights, not at all times that everyone agree with you, sometimes it will results injustice because you are unfair to the others, we must think for others also for it may break our silence and peace and results lasting.

Selfishness often caused us to create conflict with others. One best example for that is when you ride a bus with one seat left then there is an old woman climb after you. You may reason out that both of you pay the fare for that ride and you climbed ahead of her. With that conviction, you will of course take the seat leaving the old woman standing. Upholding your principle and privilege, you will ignore the weak old woman who is unable to endure long time of standing. The old woman will only be fortunate if your principles and rights you believe in will be knocked by your conscience.

The relationship between peace and human rights is that peace is our priority in life and each of us has a privileged to be understood due to our principle in life.

May justice prevail along with human rights since all people has right to live and have freedom. We have the right to choose our leaders for progress through elections. We have governments' program to support the poor people. We have the right to express our feelings regarding our government and concerning the environment.