

PEACE AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Karl M. Bation
Nursing Department
Universidad de Zamboanga-Ipil
Zamboanga Sibugay Province, Philippines

Everyone needs peace and human rights among themselves. According to my book in NSTP, "treat others the way you would treat yourself". That is the good citizenship value of justice. We want that each one of us to loved and be loved. Love begets love. If love reigns in our heart, the harmonious relationship of all the people will prevail. We want that each one of us have the opportunity. The great gift from human beings lies in our freedom to continuously correct our wrong and make new person of ourselves. But how do we commit unity, if there are misunderstandings? If there is no unity peace doesn't appear, because of so many conflicts. One of this is our language. There are different types of language all over the world since civilization began. Language is created for improvement on communication but the negative effect on this is we are in different countries, we have our own national language. In order to understand each other, we need translate.

Second conflict is the culture of emanated from dynasty in human race. From generation to generation until now, just like language, culture had so many types on it. People choose what culture they belong. Some tribes fight because of the culture, poor self-image that make them not united.

Third conflict is our religion. Still we know of different prophets, who established the religion in accordance to one's faith, worshipping the gods and goddesses. That their rights and what the faith we have. We know that religion is one way to talk and have relation to God. Religion evolves and produces types on it.

Therefore, I conclude that love is the recipe for peace, because love is making sense in our hearts that make feel us love one another and respected. Because of this, peace is formed. Now remember, even if you are in the highest authority in this world you are eyed by everyone, no exemptions, equality and justice shall prevail.