PEACE AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Mard Richie B. Jocson
Nursing Department
Universidad de Zamboanga-Ipil
Zamboanga Sibugay Province, Philippines

It is our right to live peacefully in this world. We have to respect others in order for us to be respected too, that's the most important of all. Following The Commandments of our Almighty God and the rules and regulations that our government had promulgated is acquiring of what we called peace.

Peace means the absence of war at the certain area or country. Do we have peace in our country nowadays? because as what I can see, many of innocent civilian people died because of a nonsense war. Obviously their right to live as human being had been violated. A life without peace is not a life anymore for we cannot enjoy or we cannot have our right at all. We cannot go shopping or enjoy ourselves together with our family because we are afraid to be hit by a bullet from somewhere.

Peace is not hard to be acquired if we will just respect one another. Acquiring or creating a war is not a solution to any grudge that our government and the opposite has, instead it just worsen the situation. They have different goals and wishes that each one of them want to achieve. The opposite side wants to take revenge because they believe that their right as human had violated by some government officials. The conflict between the two opposing groups diverts peace and unity into war. Now try to ask yourself, does war is really a solution to conflicts or problems that we have.

Peace will be acquired by each of us when we have peace in ourselves first. We have to identify who we are and what we live for. We have to consider respect the beliefs of the others because conflict starts when we people don't understand each other.

One cannot be at peace with others and the world if he/she is not at peace with himself/herself. Many people find themselves in trouble with others because of their inability to control themselves. They can't control themselves to stay calm when they are in the middle of pressure.

Human right, on the other hand is very essential to everyone since we are born in this world as equal even though some of us are not equal in terms of money and power. Justice should be serving to the people fairly regardless to their status in life. But I don't think there is fair in justice nowadays since most of the justice is only favorable to those who are rich and famous. In this case we can obviously say that the rights of those people who are involved in this situation are being violated. They didn't know some other way to have the justice so they made a move that show to the government that they are worthy to have fair justice. The conflict starts there. These truth hurts but then we must face the reality that it is also our wrong doing that starts a misunderstanding that sometimes leads to a war. A war that persists causes damages to some valuable properties and made an economy fall.

We can only say that peace is hard to be acquired if we are as greedy and not respectful to other people. It is hard for the rest because they want to see the others suffer. They live for their own advantages even though they'll take away the dignity of others who can't fight against them through money and power but through force and in a violent way.

It is common between the rich and poor people. The rich and powerful people want to become richer and powerful so they will force the poor to do things that are against their will. The poor person wants to have justice but oftentimes they can't find justice in this world.