Crimes happen in our country every now and then, families versus families, government against the armed forces and even among friends, conflict is rampant. But I think, peace is achievable if everybody will take their part.

Peace is not a question of our differences not even of our failures or misunderstandings, it is in the concept as to how we perceive at things around us. Yes, peace is so illusive but it is also the most abused term that most people misused or hid their evil ways behind this.

As a member of the society, we should value human life and consider selflessness in responding adversaries or dealing with complicated situation. We should be open to other ideas. We should be willing to take action and contribute for the common good. Consider respect, love, sincerity, open-mindedness and non-violent settlement for lasting peace in this world.
