

Human Rights

Sanusi, Elma H.
School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City

First of all human rights is the main key to have freedom in this world in our present day. Human rights must empower by the people, it must be strongly adopted by our own self.

Having rights is like you living in the most peaceful place. Because how can you promote peace if you're not having your own rights?

Human rights must not be controlled by the politicians, but in our present day, it is like for example in the Maguindanao. The people there live in a miserable life in which the children's are suffering from hunger, failure and especially they are awkward, they are awkward to fight for their rights, they even have the freedom prevail? And even in our life, we have the freedom to choose what we want, but how come we are very awkward to fight for our own rights? The right to live freely in this world and to have a better future for our next generation.

I really hope that God will enlighten the minds of our fellow countryman; we live in a democratic place but how come we are slaves by it?

It is because we humans don't know how to understand each other's race, we tend to have fame than to spread our love to everybody.