Now a day, people are aware of the rights they have especially here in the Philippines. Due to this, they exert selves according to the law they know. Though human rights brought freedom to the Republic of the Philippines and placed equal rights upon everyone, it was only visible at first.

Have you heard of the inverted triangle? This is how I see human rights at the current era. People were blamed of crimes they did not commit. Rich people that hold power and position can turn black to white and save themselves from blood staining their hands.

Through there's justice to be on rescue can change everything. Think about it, would it be better to bring back Marco's time.
