

Peace and Human Rights

By: Mabele Tantiado
School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Everybody is searching for peace and the right to live without criticism. The absence of any form of violence and other destructive situations within a state could result peace. Peace that could unify people of different culture, society and ethnic group to work together in harmony.

The knowledge on human rights could wake us up from ignorance the moment we exist in this world even we are still in womb of our biological mother we already have this human rights. These human rights could protect us from any form of violence and abuses. These rights could punish of the doer of the violence. Through the laws of our country human rights are the most given priority.

Peace and human rights could be consider us interdependent with each other, for we could not obtain or achieve peace as a whole if we will not give consideration to others human rights.