

Human Rights: A Student's Thoughts on Politics

By: Munding, Alinur Jamam
Department of Civil Engineering
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Every man in this world has a right, though freedom can be synonymous to it, maybe in some aspect and maybe definitely yes. As an individual we are guided by laws, by rules and regulations of humanity. We, as individuals have different views, opinions, likes, dislikes, name it, it's because we are made unique with each other.

Politics is a very intense topic for adults, different views on the subject, Nowadays it is very difficult to choose the most qualified leaders. Some politics, not all but most of them are hunger for power. Here comes the election and every aspiring candidate is very friendly, accommodating sometimes tends to be entertaining. But when the election is already done and to be seated in the position, the friendly politicians become unpleasant. The most excruciating scenario of politics is forcing to vote for a person that is not our choice. Which is violating our right; our right for suffrage.

If I become a Leader, I want my nation to be free from danger; I will make it as child-friendly place, a home for everybody. A dream, but we can make it happen.