Philippines- an archipelago of 7,107 islands of beauty and riches, spurs pride upon each Filipino being it dabble as the peal of the Orient Sea. From abounding diversity of aquatic flora and fauna (plants and animals) to the fertile grounds birthing forest gross – it is such a beauty to be hold. How amazing did the almighty blessed us with all these riches water famish with fish soils foresting with fertility and life , all but or piece of what we call EARTH. Rich we are but how long shall we be?

With these entire resources mode available, one thing people failed to understand is that we, human being are never the owners but more stewards. But why does it seem so hard? Why bother to care?

I see families are poor from both waistlines and rural mountains. They are in great needs to feed their families, no wonder they resort to ways that are evils, illegal and unsustainable. Fishermen want big catch, formers want good harvest but mother earth pays the price. With this grave desperation, mother earth cannot say no, for now, it won't but surely someone it will show.

A population incused, uses of these resources grew, number of abuses uncared too. Ardent dependence, great dependence on these resources sadly coupled by their responsibility of just using without management measures, which is no conservation. It is truly sad that the very people benefiting from these resources are the very people overly exploiting it to exhaustion. Why can when our families need money? Why care when we want goings? Simply because we are just stewards not the owners, sources all the resources will come to an end. Fish today. fish tomorrow.
