The right not to be treated in an inhuman or degrading way, what it means in human treatment means treatment causing severe mental or physical suffering, degrading treatment means grossly humiliating or undignified.

The right to respect for private and family life, home and correspondence, it means family life is wider than blood or formal relationships, private life concern things like privacy , personal choices, relationships and participation in community life, home means respect for the home someone has.

Public authorities must take steps to protect an individual life in almost all circumstances and must not take away a person’s life except in every limited circumstance. This protection requires an official investigation into deaths resulting from the state’s failure to protect life or use of force.
