Many have experienced abuse in different manners way back the old times and rampantly outgrowing nowadays. Would this remind us that we are not humans to know what we should do to get rid of these instances? Maybe.

Unfortunately, laws and other sectors are becoming useless and non effective as years approach. This is because people now know their rights but sadly, the wrong way. For example, protests and rallies are very common now. Why are these occurring? Obviously because powerful people deprived their rights to get attention which the concerned sectors should have given them. This is very plain and simple. A right is violated once a right is not given. And a violated right needs nothing more than revival through providing corresponding actions the very right way.
