

Human Rights

Mae D. Fabiantes

School of Education Arts and Science
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City

Human rights are "rights and freedoms to which all humans are entitled". This statement emphasized that every human is entitled their own rights that should be applied and practiced. When a child was born it equipped with his right to live in this world. Human accepts rule in the society in return by its protection and security.

The 1987 Philippine constitution in which considered as the fundamental law of the land gives emphasis to the protection of human rights of the Filipino citizens as it is stated in the article III (Bill of rights). The CHR or the Commission of Human rights serve as the instrumentality of the government to ensure the protection and security of the people's right.

The right to education is an establish entitlement of free education to for all the children, Not only in the elementary, and secondary education but as well as higher education. The government's duty is to give affordable and accessible education to all despite of the status of the individual and eliminate discrimination. The government should fund and provide good facilities, infrastructures, and tools in all levels of public schools in the country, to endow with qualified staff and give appropriate instruction and retention method to the students. The educational curriculums should be supple to adopt in the social changes.

The right to health recognized that everyone has the right to live with well being standard, adequate in wellness together with his family. A person differ in social status was entitle with good health and be provided reasonable medicines and health checkups in the hospital. The government was responsible to give the citizens healthy development of the young ones, prevention of diseases and public hospitals and clinics equipped with facilities and medicines that could sustain the high standard of health.

The right to elect as stated in the article V of the Philippine constitution or so called the "right of suffrage" was not only a right but also a duty of every citizen as he/she was on the right age. If the person was in legal age should be registered to vote. This right serves as a way to make choices of whom we wanted to entrust the power and responsibility to take the people's money, to ensure the security of the citizens.

The right to peace and order distinguish that individual was sanction to live in the community wherein he was sure of his safeties and security as well as his family. The government should strictly implement their laws against violence, providing the society with enough law enforcement to guard everyone against bad elements.

Lastly the right to news blackout, of course the people should be aware about blackouts. The government make sure that the people is informed if there would be a blackout, how long does it last, and the reason behind those blackouts because this people were the one paying electric bills of their consumption as well as to fund the electric companies.

There were still several rights that an individual was endow with and always bear in mind that no one has the right to deprived others right.