A place where the people live is called earth. Earth is one of the most important things in our lives. Earth is our surrounding which both non-living and living beings are included. In order to balance our natural resources, we should take an action to improve our environment by doing a simple distribution or way like cleaning our surroundings, planting of trees, and by getting involved in any organization that deals in the environment aspect.

There are lots of problems that our planet earth is facing today. One of it is the global warming. Global warming is the increase temperature of earth's surface. The pollution destroys the ozone layer and harms all the non-living and living things because of the ultraviolet rays. To solve this problem, we should coordinate with the president or city mayor by announcing to the public that we must protect our earth by cleaning and stop burning of some material waste that can produce smoke.

I believe that in any problem there is always a solution. We should think globally but act locally, take care of our planet, and do some good things that can help to conserve our planet earth.
