

“How to save the environment”

Bruzo, Maylyn Nomer R.
School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City

Saving the environment is very important and almost crucial these days. We should save the earth in order for us to have a place to live and also for the new generation to come, as we can see now a day, pollution is the cause of almost all of the problems here on earth, it can destroy our mother earth and our health is at risk for illness.

There are many things that people can do in order to save the environment, like turning off appliances and lights when we are not using them, avoid creating rash, plant tree, and recycle paper, plastic and aluminum products as well and other. These things are quite easy to do. We should only have the patience. We are not only saving our mother earth but also it can help us to be responsible in some things we should save our environment because we only have one world and our environment id\s our world.