Does peace simply mean the absence of war? Probably yes. But for some, that definition alone is not enough. A deeper explanation of such is needed. The word "Peace" is the only thing that could connect us no matter what race, religion, or nationality we possess. But before attaining that, we have to begin peace with each one of us because we cannot give peace to another without having it first on our own.

If there is peace within us, there will be harmony in our society and possibly a better future for our country. As a result, we will all live in a peaceful world where love, harmony and freedom is within the heart of each individual.
