

Human Rights

Judy C. Malik

Bachelor of Science in Nursing

School of Allied and Medicine

Universidad de Zamboanga

Human rights are necessary to human kind because we deserve to be treated right. But sad to say that there are lots of violent works involving human trafficking and child abuse. These are people who have no knowledge about their rights as a person or are just afraid for themselves and their family's lives. Violence against women is degradable and will make a bad impression on the children's mind that inflicting upon their mother is casual and normal and might do the same to their spouse when they grow up. So, human rights must be taught not only in school, it should start at home.